Understanding and Compassionate Care

Welcoming a child into a family through adoption is an exciting time. You are changing the world for a child in need.

The needs of children who have been adopted from foster care will change as they grow. Sunshine Health wants you to know that we are your partner in health, now and in the future.

Although today things are new and exciting, there may be times that become challenging.

We are here to help.

Helping Families

Our adoption advocates can help you understand the benefits and services available to your family. We coordinate physical and behavioral healthcare for your adopted child. We can also connect you and your family to needed resources, such as counseling and support groups.

Our Adoption Advocates:

- Are regionally located and knowledgeable about providers and resources in your community.
- Can provide support for families before a crisis erupts.
- Work to identify new providers and therapists to add to our network who have the expertise needed to best serve children who have been adopted.
- Provide training for providers on trauma informed care, human trafficking, attachment and other topics related to the special needs of children who have been adopted.

At Sunshine Health, we understand that the needs of children adopted through the state's child welfare system are unique and complex.

Their physical and behavioral healthcare needs do not end after they've been welcomed into forever families. Our Child Welfare Specialty Plan continues to coordinate care for these children – and support families – as they grow and their needs evolve.

We also understand that trauma can manifest itself in different ways and at different points during a child's life, often long after it is experienced. Our integrated care approach ensures a child's emotional well-being is cared for along with his/her physical health.
